

MRS. LIVERMORE A BARONESS

MARRIED TO RAYMOND SEILLIERE BY ARCHBISHOP CORRIGAN.

The oft reported marriage of Mrs. Emma Livermore, the widow of Charles F. Livermore of this city to Baron Raymond Salts...

actually took place last night, in the Archbishop's residence, Madison avenue and Fifty-ninth street. Not more than three or four of Mrs. Livermore's friends knew that she was to be married, and most of them will obtain their knowledge only tomorrow, when the Baroness and her bride are far out on the Atlantic ocean on their way to France. They took passage on the French steamship La Bretagne, which leaves her wharf, foot of Morton street, at 4 o'clock this morning.

Besides Archbishop Corrigan, his secretary, the Rev. Father Sullivan, and the contracting parties, not more than a dozen guests were present at the ceremony, which was performed at 7 o'clock in one of the large reception rooms in the Archbishop's house. Mr. Buchanan Winthrop was one of the witnesses of the ceremony. The Countess's ceremony, she came to this country with Baroness, took place in autumn, for the purpose, as was stated then, and as the Count himself said on a few days ago to a SUN reporter, of sending his friend, the best man, was not present at all. When the ceremony was over, while the Archbishop performed the marriage ceremony, were Mrs. John O'Brien, the mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop, the Marquis Talleyrand-Perigord, Mrs. O'Brien, the Countess of O'Brien, the stepfather of the Baroness, and confided to his home, 43 West Thirty-second street.

The Baroness wore a rich costume of gray Bedford cord and velvet, relieved with white satin. Her hair was worn in a high chignon, and a diamond tiara and necklace and a diamond brooch to correspond completed the costume. The Countess wore a dress of white satin, the ceremony to the residence, where they were received by Mrs. John O'Brien, Mr. Winthrop, on Fifth avenue, where they were seated at a table with Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop, the Archbishop's house.

The Countess and the Baroness being Americans there was no civil marriage. For several years past the report that Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop was to marry the Countess was current in society and some people found it difficult to believe that she would be united with the Countess. It was not until a few general months ago the engagement of the couple was announced that the rumor was dispelled.

FOREIGN GOLDSMITH EXCUSSED.

With a Hint that He Was Not Counsel for Oppenheimers—Well as Jacob Oppenheimer was on the stand before Judge Pomeroy of the Court of Common Pleas yesterday as a witness in his action to recover $400 commissions on a real estate transaction from the firm of Joseph and Henry Fitzsimons, he was asked by the attorney for the mother of Justice Fitzsimons, "Did you know that your son-in-law, Joseph Fitzsimons, had been indicted for conspiracy?" He got tangled up on cross-examination, and finally admitted that he was a goldsmith, which it is said, he has done successfully since he came to this country. It is also said that the Baron and Baroness will reside in Paris.

The witness does not understand the question.

Lawyer Edward Brown, the cross-examiner, objected to plaintiff having counsel in the jury room. "You are not to have any counsel," Judge Pryor turned sharply to Juror Goldsmith and said, "You're excused." Juror Goldsmith then left the jury room, but Judge Pryor waved him off and said: "That will do, nice little fellow."

The case proceeded with eleven jurors. They found for the defendant.

The oft reported marriage of Mrs. Emma Livermore, the widow of Charles F. Livermore of this city, to Baron Raymond Seillière actually took place last night, in the Archbishop's residence, Madison avenue, and Elizabeth Place, between three and three and a half o'clock. The bride and groom, who were both married, and most of them will obtain their knowledge of it to-day, when the Baron and his bride are far out on the ocean on their way to France. They took passage on the French steamship Le Breteuil, which left for France at Morton street, at 4 o'clock this morning. Besides Archbishop Corrigan, his secretary, Rev. William J. more than a million. The baroness of today is a woman of vision, insight, and an attractive-looking woman. She is very close to her stepfather. About a year ago, she married a French aristocrat, a member of the Catholic Church. Her godmother was Princess de Sagan, sister of Baron de Sillière. The baroness's father was John Hildebrand, a well-known real estate speculator of this city. He died in 1920.

Baron Sillière was a tall, dark man, between 40 and 50 years old. He belongs to a well-known family in France. He is a wine taster. Nearly twenty years ago he inherited a fortune from his father, but in twelve years he had lost it. He then appealed to the French Tribunal of the Commerce to have him removed to a lunatic asylum, where he died.

Baron Sillière was married to a woman with a fortune, and his interest in wine was her hobby. His family was considered for 5,000,000 francs. In 1880, Baron Sillière made his first visit to this country, and he was very successful. His wine was received in society, and despite his contribution, became a favorite. In 1887 he died, and his wife inherited the fortune. At that time there was locked up in an asylum at the time later he obtained a release and came to this country. He had no purpose and came to this country to make a fortune, which, it is said, he has made in a considerable success of.

It is said that the Baron and Baroness will reside in Paris.

Mr. Goldsmith then asked to "remain, but Judge or waived him off and said: "That will do."

The case proceeded with eleven jurors, six found for the defendant.

MRS. LIVERMORE A BARONESS
MARRIED TO RAYMOND SEILLIERE BY
ARCHBISHOP CORRIGAN.

Only Four or Five Friends Witnessed the Ceremony Last Evening, and by the Time Others Learn of It from The Sun the Bridal Pair Will Be Far Out at Sea.

The oft reported marriage of Mrs. Emma Livermore, the widow of Charles F. Livermore of this city, to Baron Raymond Sellière actually took place last night, in the Archbishop's residence, Madison avenue and Fifty-third street. The bride and groom, four of the bride's sisters and a large number of Mrs. Livermore's friends knew that she was to be married, and most of them will obtain their knowledge of it to-day, when the Baron and his bride are far out on the ocean on their way to France. They will pass on the French steamship La Bretagne, which is scheduled to leave La Bortene street, at 4 o'clock this morning. Besides Archbishop Corrigan, his secretary, the Rev. William J. Daly, and the contracting parties, not more than five persons were present at the ceremony, which was performed at the Archbishop's large reception room in the Archbishop's house on Madison street. Winthrop was one of the witnesses of the ceremony. Count de Montgomery, who came to this country with Baron Sellière last autumn, for the purpose, as was stated then, and as the Count himself said only a few days ago, of being a spectator, was not attending his friend as best man, was not present at all. Those who surrounded the couple while the Archbishop performed the marriage ceremony were Mrs. John O'Brien,

The mother of G. K. O'Brien, Mrs. Buchanan, is the daughter of the late Louis Talleyrand-Périgord, and Mrs. Baroness O'Brien, the stepmother of the Baroness, is confined to his home, 43 West Thirty-second street.

The Baroness wore a rich costume of gray Bedford cord and velvet, relieved with white lace. Her hair was dressed in a white tulle bonnet to correspond completely the costume.

The Baron and his bride were driven, after the ceremony, to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, 490 Wintonow, on Fifth avenue, where they were afterwards joined by some of those present at the ceremony.

Baron Safflere and the Baroness being Americans, there was no civil marriage.

For several years, Mrs. Safflere and Mrs. Tolvermore was to become the wife of the Baron. The latter, however, was disappointed, and it is difficult to believe that she would be so united with the eccentric French nobleman. But saying this, it is not to be wondered that the marriage was formally announced. Since this announcement was made and since the return to the United States of the Baron, there have been varying reports in regard to the wedding. It was at first thought to the effect that the wedding had been postponed, and that the couple had been in France, and that the ceremony had been postponed. It was also thought that the objection to the marriage on the part of the Baroness was so pronounced that O'Brien, the banker, was so pronounced that it was doubtful whether the marriage would be consummated.

The friendship between the Baron and his bride has been one of long standing, and the Baroness has been a frequent guest at the Baron's street bank at one time, and a partner of Mr. Safflere's, one of the Baron Safflere's most distinguished friends.

Clearing weather prevailed west of the coast line, with fair weather south of the lakes and west of the Allegheny mountains. It is now growing warmer in the southern half of the country and the high pressure now west of the Mississippi is passing to the southeast which insures some warm days for this neighborhood for several days to come.

Dense fog enveloped the middle Atlantic and New England coasts. Yesterday, with a light snow and southwest wind, there was little rain and fog. WEDNESDAY, April 22.—A number of tents arrived from the west, and the night has been clear, having been sent by Gov. Markham. Many people, who were taken from the night in their homes, were taken in the night. The work of repair is going on at a rapid rate.

The Weather.

Rain continued to fall in the lake regions and the middle Atlantic states, although the storm clouds had passed into Canada in the early morning. Clearing weather prevailed west of the coast line, with fair weather south of the lakes and west of the Allegheny Mountains. In the middle Atlantic and New England states, yesterday with a light snow and in the east the day was little danger.

In the south the day was rainy and foggy. The thermometer at New Orleans, at five o'clock, gave a half past five o'clock, the high pressure average humidity, 66 per cent, wind generally south west; average velocity, five miles an hour.

The thermometer at Perry's pharmacy, in The Sun building, recorded the following yesterday:
